WISH THEM WELL

That the public wishes the new county officials well was abundantly manifest when they assumed office yesterday. Although Ralph Cunningham is a new official, his was only a transition from the chief deputyship to the head of the Recorder's office. The other two District Attorney Francis J. Healey and Sheriff John Miller entered upon the duties of their office for the first time.

All three have the confidence of the people, that confidence accompanied by good wishes being expressed in person by hundreds and with floral offerings.

On the sheriff and district attorney devolve hard and exacting tasks. Their assumption of public place was almost simultaneous with a Richmond murder mystery. To the sheriff will fall the job of finding the murderer and then the district attorney must prosecute and see that justice is meted out to the perpetrator of the foul deed.

Paraphrasing an old saying it is impossible to please all the people all of the time. Both the sheriff and district attorney are well aware of the truth of that statement, but if these men do their duty fearlessly they will have no occasion to fear the ultimate result.

The Record-Herald in common with thousands of other whose votes endowed Messrs. Healey and Miller with responsibility, extends sincere good wishes for their success. There is an added reason for our interest which is, both are Richmond men and Richmond will feel proud that it has able representation in the conduct of county affairs.

Four Billions For Relief Is Plea Of F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—President Roosevelt told Congress today that the Federal budget could not be balanced in the 1935 fiscal year, beginning July 1, and asked that $4,000,000,000 be placed at his disposal to provide jobs for all of the 3,500,000 unemployed on relief rolls.

He said in his annual budget message, read today, that the nation gradually is conquering the depression. Four million persons have returned to work since March 1933 when unemployment reached its peak, he added.

NO FIGURES GIVEN

The message, which contained no specific figures on the number still out of work, disclosed:

1.—Total Federal expenditures in the coming fiscal year will reach an estimated $8,520,000,000.

2.—The total receipts will be around $3,991,904,929 as compared with $3,711,650,688 during the 1933 fiscal year.

BIG DEFICIT

3.—Recovery and relief expenditures will be an estimated $4,582,011,475 as compared with an estimated $3,239,802,852 this fiscal year.

4.—The gross treasury deficit will be $4,528,000,000 in the fiscal year ending 1935 for debt retirement.

5.—The net deficit will be $3,892,000,000.

NO NEW TAXES

7.—No new taxes are requested. Congress is asked to continue the so-called nuisance taxes which expire soon and the three cent stamp rate.

8.—A national defense appropriation of $899,948,065—the greatest in the history of the country—is requested.

DISMISS WORKERS

9.—A total of 137,134 Federal work ers are to be dismissed.

10.—The $2,811,000,000 gold profit has not been disturbed.

11.—Veterans pensions in 1936 will reach the staggering total of $704,000,000.

12.—The accumulated New Deal deficit for three years on June 30, 1936, will total $11,700,000,000.

13.—While the trend of recovery and relief expenditures is downward regular Federal expenses will increase. This is due in part to a five percent pay restoration for Federal workers which involves $65,000,000.

GAIN SHOWN BY FIGURES FOR SEASON

An increase in total value of more than $55,000 over the past year for building permits issued in the city of Richmond during the year of 1934 was seen yesterday when City Building Inspector A. J. Hurley released a report for the calendar year.

During 1934, 238 permits were issued involving a total valuation of $159,614, Hurley stated. For 1933, 315 permits were issued for a total of $103,948.

Although more building permits were issued in 1933 than in 1934, the figures for 1934 are $55,666 in excess of the value of permits for the previous year.

At the same time Hurley pointed out that there has been a large amount of building and construction work in the city that can not be included in the official figures. Among these, he stated, is the $2,000,000 construction program recently inaugurated by the Standard Oil company of California at its Richmond refinery. Several other local plants have completed construction work that would bring a large total for the city. However, under the city laws, it is not necessary for those building on parcels of land not subdivided into city lots to apply for building permits. Otherwise, Hurley declared the total for the year would be in the millions.

PERMITS ITEMIZED

Permits issued during 1934 were itemized as follows:

Three public buildings at cost of $46,000.

One business building at cost of $27,500.

Ten cottages, cost $25,000.

17 alterations and repairs, $50,569.

40 permits for additions $15,275.

47 miscellaneous permits, $6,620.

Harbor Masons Hear Talk On Trip to Mexico

Meredyth Morgan, well known local young man, was speaker of the evening last night when the Harbor Lodge of Masons held its meeting in the Masonic Temple. Morgan told members of the lodge of his experiences in Mexico.

F. H. Wilkins, worshipful master, presided over the session of the lodge, which was followed by light refreshments.

It was announced that the next meeting of the organization will be held on January 28.

Street Light Fund Exhausted

It will be useless for residents of the city to petition for additional street lights before the beginning of the next fiscal year, starting July 1, 1935, as the fund is now exhausted.

The last street light that can be granted under the present budget, was ordered installed by the council last evening at Thirteenth and Ohio streets.

The monthly report of Fire Chief W. A. Cooper, showed a fire loss for December of $413,400.

Property valued at $685,72 was reported to the police as stolen last month, and of this amount $253.39 was recovered, according to the report of Police Chief L. E. Jones, filed last evening.

Betty Gow Is Victor After Court Ordeal As A Witness

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 7.—UP—Bessie Mott Gow came triumphantly today through the hardest ordeal of her life—telling a morbidly curious world the story of the kidnapping of Babe Charles Augustus Lindbergh.

The tiny little nurse, known as Betty Gow, called on a reserve of fortitude inherited from Scottish covenanted ancestors who were her ancestors, and answered a barrage of questions without fault.

She was scheduled to be sent sobbing away from the witness chair by lawyers who would hint that she herself, was involved in the crime, but finished the day a victor.

TOOK "BEATING"

She took a hard, two-hour hammering from counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, but she walked out of court erect and smiling, a little yellow feather on her hat bobbing jauntily through the crowd.

That does not mean that Miss Gow was not nervous for twice she was close to tears. Particularly when she told in the flat voice that people use when they are in a witness chair, how Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh turned away from the empty crib on the night of the kidnapping.

Onetah Tribe Will Pay Honor To J. A. Miller

Preparations for "Johnny Miller Night" in honor of Sheriff J. A. Miller were discussed last night by Onetah Tribe of Red Men at a meeting held in their lodge hall. The event will be held on January 21 with Sheriff Miller as honored guest.

Committees for the affair include Forrest Simon, publicity; C. L. Sutcliffe, banquet; O. J. Ripley, reception. A large class of candidates will be adopted that night.

Thursday night, January 17, Onetah Tribe will install its officers with Onetah Council at the clubrooms.

Veterans Given Council Backing

At the request of Admiral Dewey Camp No. 46, Spanish War Veterans Honor Post No. 915, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Richmond Post No. 10, American Legion, the council last evening adopted a resolution which will be sent to the California United States Senators and Congressman Albert Carter, urging the adoption by Congress of the Patman bill for the payment of adjusted compensation certificates.

The adoption of the bill would mean the distribution of $1,772,000 to veterans of this county.

The motion for the adoption of the resolution was made by Ripley and seconded by Meyer, and on roll call there was a unanimous vote.

Are Office Holders

SHERIFF J. A. MILLER, left, and County Recorder Ralph Cunningham yesterday assumed their posts as county officers to serve for the ensuing four year term. Both Miller and Cunningham are Richmond residents.

New Members Official Family Are Welcomed

The air was not filled with music at the Martinez courthouse yesterday, but it was redolent with the fragrance of flowers and pulsing with the fervid felicitations of a large concourse of friends of the three new officials who took their oaths of office and immediately assumed their respective duties amid an avalanche of congratulations throughout the day.

COLORFUL CEREMONY

There was a colorful ceremony that marked the transfer of the sheriff's office and it was attended by both the friends of the incoming and retiring sheriff, the throng spreading into an overflow into the corridor.

Picturesque as well as impressive was the opening scene when R. R. Veale, white-haired from 30 years of continuous service, presented his young successor, Nathan Cardozo, only member of the court to disagree with the findings of the majority.

Veale, who had been sheriff of Contra Costa county since 1925, was accompanied by a congratulatory speech with best wishes from Veale who then presented Miller with a sub-machine gun, expressing a hope that it would not be necessary to use it, but in case the occasion arose that he would handle it with effective action.

In response Miller declared his purpose to give the county as excellent service as he had marked the administration of his distinguished predecessor.

Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter; Asks Probation

MARTINEZ, January 7.—A plea of guilty to a manslaughter charge was made today by Duncan McGregor of Richmond, who was represented by Attorney Robert V. Collins. McGregor applied for probation and the matter was referred to the probation officer, to make a report in two weeks. McGregor was arrested in Richmond following an automobile mishap, December 2, in which it is claimed his car struck another machine, resulting in fatal injury of Mrs. Oleta Patterson.

Cerrito SERA Park Project Gets Approval

Local offices of the SERA yesterday announced approval of the Cerrito park project in El Cerrito as submitted by Harry Chapman, city engineer of El Cerrito.

The project calls for drainage and grading of the park, trimming trees, installation of culverts and ballfields and general improvements.

The work will cost $6,219 and more than 110 men will be employed, it was stated.

Other projects for Richmond and El Cerrito are being studied by the SERA board.

Alpha Masons to Convene Tonight

The first stated meeting of the new year will be held this evening by Alpha Lodge of Masons at the Masonic Temple. E. George Harlow will preside and will introduce Alonzo Baker, of San Jose, who will speak on the international situation for 1935.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the meeting.

U. S. COURT STAYS CLEAR OF NRA ACT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—UP—No federal industrial recovery legislation to prohibit the oil industry was brought unconstitutional today in the first test of such policies to come before the Supreme Court.

The court held yesterday that it is the duty of the President to enforce the law, but it could not determine whether the constitutionality of the act was in question.

NO RESTRICTION

While at first appearing a much less critical one which might be resolved at such other recovery legislation, this feeling changed when it was noted in the opinion, read by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, that the section told the cause it carried no sufficient restriction on the power the President might exercise.

The court also stated carefully clear of any attempt to pass on the section of NRA which authorizes the promulgation of codes of fair competition. In fact, it was noted that provision is made in this section that specific findings of fact should be made before a code is promulgated.

ONE OPPOSED

The dissenting opinion of Justice Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, only member of the court to disagree with the findings of the majority, was carefully pointed out that there was an question of the competence of the Congress to delegate legislative power to invest a code with the force of law. He also pointed out that there was no question of the power of Congress to regulate production.

Oil industry leader Harold L. Ickes said an attempt would be made to control production through other provisions of the petroleum code.

Nomination Of Directors Is Held At Meet

Nomination of directors was held last evening when the Richmond Merchants Association held a short dinner meeting at Hotel Carquinez. Names of those nominated were not revealed.

Balloting on the nominations will be held during the week and when the results are announced, by Miss Lucile Mitchell, secretary of the Association, a meeting of the board will be held. At that time new officers will be elected.

Clifford Anglin, official of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, was the speaker last night. He told members of the Association of the workings of that organization.

Ben Malik, local clothier, was chairman of the evening and President Al Furrer presided.

Local Schools Are Reopened

Richmond school children trooped back to their classes yesterday with the re-opening of school following the Christmas vacation season.

This is a continuation of the winter semester, which will end on January 27, due to the fact that schools were opened a month later last fall.

Graduation exercises will be held at the high school the week of January 27, it was stated.

Robbery Theory Is Discarded; Cash Is Found At Scene

Deputy

R. R. VEALE, who retired after 40 years of service as sheriff of Contra Costa county yesterday was named as deputy constable for Justice Township No. One at Martinez.

Ex-Sheriff Joins Staff Of Constable

MARTINEZ, Jan. 7.—Appointment of R. R. Veale, retiring sheriff of Contra Costa county, as a deputy constable was revealed here today with the filing of papers in the office of County Clerk S. C. Wells by Constable R. B. Rogers of Martinez.

Veale officially left his duties as sheriff at 12 o'clock noon but his appointment as a public official in the capacity of deputy constable was filed only a few minutes later by Constable Rogers.

Bodily Named As President Of Allied Veterans

Jack Bodin, commander of Admiral Dewey Camp of United Spanish War Veterans last night was elected president of the Allied War Veterans Council, Fred Wake, of the American Legion was named vice president while Mrs. Nina Vickery, of the Legion Auxiliary, was elected secretary and treasurer.

A committee was appointed to attend meetings of the city council and to represent the veterans in civic affairs pertaining to veterans. On this committee are Clifford Hunt, Mrs. Rhea Hunt, Jack Bodin, Fred Wake, Pearl Johnson, and Mrs. Otto Poulsen.

Preliminary plans for visiting schools on Washington and Lincoln birthdays were discussed.

Bank Robbers Denied Parole

Floyd Hoage and Edward J. Murphy, convicted of robbing the El Cerrito branch of the Mechanics Bank on December 5, 1933, have been denied paroles.

The two men were found guilty in the Contra Costa county superior court. About $1200 was taken in the holdup after which the men fled in a waiting car. They were arrested in San Francisco two months after the crime.

The woman in the case was sought by Richmond police last night in their investigation into the mysterious murder of Joseph C. Anthony, 28, operator of a service station at 1423 Cutting boulevard.

Anthony was found dead early yesterday morning bound hand and foot, lying fully clothed upon his blood-spattered bed, his skull shattered by repeated blows from an adze, apparently struck from behind. The instrument's five-inch blade was sunk into the left side of his head to the shaft. A similar wound was on the right side of his head. Either blow would have proved fatal, police say.

WOMAN IS SOUGHT

The woman "angle" entered the case when an examination of the body revealed that Anthony's face and neck had been "clawed" and scratched by fingernails. In addition, Coroner Aubrey Wilson and police found that the man's head, back, breast, battered by some blunt instrument. There was a deep wound near his right eye and his eye had been blackened and discolored by a blow evidently struck before he was killed.

POLICE BELIEVE, however, that the woman was not alone at the time of the murder. One theory was advanced that while one assailant grappled with Anthony, the second—man or woman—struck Anthony over the head with the adze, killing him.

ABANDON ROBBERY THEORY

A theory that he had been first robbed and then killed was abandoned by Police Chief L. E. Jones and his investigating officers following discovery of the dead man's purse lying upon the blood-spattered bed in full view. The purse contained about $50 in bills and more than $13 in checks. In addition, 17 cents were found lying beneath the body.

Mrs. Lucy Dolan, of North Bend, Oregon, mother of the dead man told reporters when she was notified of the killing at her home in Oregon that as far as she knew her son had never had any enemies.

In addition, Mrs. Kathryn Westover, of Martinez, sister of the murdered man told police the same.

Gonna Rain; Says So By The Papers

Richmond can expect more rain today. Thus saith the weather man who has been turning on the faucet of the heavens and forgetting to turn it off.

Last year residents of the area wondered whether it ever would rain. Now they are wondering if it ever will stop.

Old Jap. Phyl took a holiday Saturday and Sunday but yesterday he resumed his usual activities, feeling full of vig and vim. As a result, between seven o'clock yesterday morning and five o'clock last evening, 31 inches of rain fell.

So far the total for the season is far above last year's mark and above the normal rainfall.

FIRST BANK NIGHT OF YEAR AT THE FOX

Tonight the Fox theater will hold its first big Bank Night of the new year 1935 and on the screen a great program is offered, headed by "Chu Chin Chow," the amazing romance of a slave girl with Anna May Wong, Fritz Kortner and George Robey.

TWO HITS TOMORROW
"Music In The Air" with Gloria Swanson and John Boles plus a great mystery "Murder in The Clouds" with Lyle Talbot, Ann O'Neal and Gordon Westcott; complete the big double header at the Fox tomorrow.

"Music In The Air" features the glorious romance of an actress and a playwright as its central theme. The plot is fast and furious, a romantic and thrill scenes with a background of music that is entrancing.

"Murder in The Clouds" the other feature offers the newest in screen mystery thrills.

The annual guest day program of the Richmond Club was enjoyed yesterday at a meeting held in the clubrooms on Nevin avenue. Mrs. T. T. Cramer, the president presided over the session.

Mrs. Mark Jones, of Pasadena, state chairman on motion pictures, was the speaker of the day. Mrs. Jones discussed in detail the manufacture of motion pictures, telling the local ladies something of the technical side of the films. She also discussed the respective merits of films now being shown.

Mrs. Homer DeWitt Rose of Sonoma, Alameda district president was present and spoke on the club's slogan, "Hizher Ground." Mrs. S. H. Johnson, of Danville, county federated president, was also an honored guest.

Members of the federated clubs of the city were guests during the meeting. A short, routine session was held. Tea was served at the conclusion of the meeting.

MANY FINE FINES
MARTINIZ, Jan. 7.—Fines amounting to $9,957.25 were paid by motorists who were given citations in Contra Costa county during the past year by officers of the Contra Costa bureau of the California highway patrol. It was announced in a statistical survey revealed by Traffic Captain George A. Belton today.

L. C. MOODY, chief electrician at the Santa Fe shops is recovering from a serious illness.

ULTRA AMABLE
Partly this is because Homer is too amiable. He likes everyone and they, for the most part, like him. He not only likes them, but he is soft-hearted about them. Firing a man to Homer is like pulling a molar—and much more painful.

This is one reason he has not reformed the office of the Solicitor General, entrusted with cases before the Supreme Court. Solicitor Biggs is a delightful North Carolina gentleman. But he has been heckled before the Supreme Court so caustically that even Professor Moley's magazine, staunch defender of the Administration, remarked:

"The Court has already greeted the Solicitor General with a mixture of displeasure and amusement."

Many friends of the Administration are somewhat uneasy as to the outcome.

The outcome so far does not bear close scrutiny.

Most cases come before the Supreme Court through writs of certiorari. The Government is in a strategic position in these cases. It can pick those in which it has the strongest case. Usually, therefore, it wins a heavy percentage. In 1932 it won 91 per cent; in 1930, 77 per cent and in 1929, 82 per cent. But under Homer Cummings and J. Crawford Biggs the percentage dropped to 44 per cent.

The inescapable fact is that Cummings, an excellent lawyer himself, has failed to hire good men to support him. Compare the briefs filed in the days of Harry Daugherty's alleged Justice Department scandals and the days of the New Deal. According to many lawyers, the briefs written under Daugherty were better.

In other words, Daugherty, despite the allegations lodged against him, had the sense to hire good men.

Betty Gow Is Victor After Court Ordeal As A Witness

Morrow Lindbergh who sensed that tragedy had climbed a ladder and come through a window into her home.

"And what," Miss Gow was asked, "did Colonel Lindbergh say?"

"He said, 'Anne, they have stolen our baby.'"

IDENTIFIES GUARD
Miss Gow's handkerchief, a damp and rumpled ball of linen, started for her eyes, but stopped at her lips. No tears fell. Nor did any drop when somebody handed her the aluminum casket she fastened to the baby's hand to keep him from sucking his thumb and asked her to identify it.

She choked and waited half a minute before answering: "Yes, that is the thumbguard."

WAS EXCUSED
It was midafternoon when Attorney General David T. Wilentz said "thank you, Miss Gow," and excused her from the witness stand.

She gave him a smile, went over and picked up her mink trimmed coat and started out the rear door of the courtroom that leads into the warden's office, between Mrs. Ollie Whitley, widow of the Lindbergh butler, and a court constable.

Outside the courtroom a rumor winged that Miss Gow had fainted. It quickly was magnified into another that she had died. What happened was this:

In the warden's office she swayed a bit on her feet and put her hands to her head. Then she walked over and sat down in a chair.

"Can I have a cup of tea, please?" she said. "I didn't eat any lunch."

Castle of Doom
Mildred Snow Gleason
A Story by William Faulkner

Patricia Burke, an American girl stranded in Rome, hears that the Countess Dei Sari, at the little village of Marvella, wants a governess. Arriving there to apply for the job, Pat meets a young American writer, Dirk Waters, who mysteriously warns her against the Dei Sari. Later, after the Count Dei Sari's son Sergio has called on her at the hotel, the hotel keeper also warns her against the family. She is frightened by one night by awaking to find a man slipping out of her room. The next evening, she discovers half a gold cuff link in her bureau drawer, evidently dropped there by the intruder. It has a distinctive design, and she suddenly remembers having seen an identical link on Dirk's cuff.

CHAPTER VI
PAT was so distressed by her find that, for a moment, she was tempted not to go down to Wondering what could possibly have taken Dirk out in Marvella at such an hour, Pat finished her solitary meal and went to the lounge for coffee.

THE other hotel guests in the lounge seemed quite oblivious to her presence and she was beginning to feel rather lonely when she saw Sergio Dei Sari come in, followed by an older man. She was struck by the end of their coats as they came directly towards her.

Sergio greeted her with his pleasant smile and graceful bow. "Am I intruding?"

"Not at all," Pat exclaimed. "I was eager for company."

"I should like to introduce my father," Sergio said as the older man stepped forward.

"My son has been telling me about you," Count Dei Sari remarked, in a low, cultured voice. "That was kind of him." Pat murmured, blushing. "Won't you sit down?"

For the first time, the Count smiled—a strange smile, which Pat found rather disconcerting.

dinner—where she would have to see Dirk. It was just possible, though, if not probable, that someone else besides Dirk had similar cuff links. If Dirk were still wearing his, it would prove his innocence, and she suddenly felt that it mattered a lot to her that he should be innocent. It would be stupid to stay in her room and avoid Dirk when this doubt could be settled so quickly.

Besides if Dirk had broken into her room, fantastic though it seemed she must not let him suspect, by avoiding him, that she knew whatever his purpose he would proceed with less caution if he believed her to be in the dark. Proceed—but to what end? When she went downstairs, however, Dirk was neither in the hall nor in the dining room, and she was forced at last to ask alone slightly concerned, she asked the waiter if Mr. Waters had dined early and, as informed that he had come out just before dinner.

The Count accepted her invitation, and Pat was impressed again by the graceful ease of his movements. He was a tall man, taller than his son, with the pale, rather weary face of a man who spends his time mostly indoors. His gray hair had been brushed until it fitted his head like a cap, and his mustache was perfectly trimmed. He took a gold cigarette case from a pocket, and Pat noticed that his hands were long and slender, and beautifully manicured.

"MY SON tells me," the Count said, after placing a cigarette in a slender holder and lighting it, "that you heard from my wife's friend, Mrs. Rogers, that she was looking for a governess for our little boy."

"Yes," Pat admitted timidly. There was something about the man that awed her.

"That is, however, not absolutely accurate," he continued. "We have a nurse for Peter, and we did not intend to make a change just yet."

"I see," Pat said quietly. She was crestfallen. This was obviously a polite way of telling her that she had come in vain.

"However," the Count added, "we might consider making this change sooner than we had intended."

Sergio broke in with a laugh. "Father is always very cautious," he said. "You mustn't let him discourage you."

Dei Sari looked at his son sternly and Sergio lapsed into silence with a shrug of his shoulders.

"NATURALLY," said the Count, as though there had been no interruption. "I should like to discuss the matter with you before coming to any decision. It is also quite necessary that Peter like you, as he is a rather nervous child. Takes after his mother, I'm afraid," he added, with a slight sigh.

"Of course," Pat said hurriedly. "I quite understand."

For the first time during the interview, the Count smiled—a strange smile which Pat found rather disconcerting.

"Therefore," he went on in his stiff rather pedantic fashion, "I wonder if you would dine with us at the castle tomorrow evening, when we would have plenty of time to go into the matter more fully."

"This, thought Pat, was too good to be true. Evidently she had passed the first examination successfully."

"I—I should love to," she accepted.

The Count rose. "Excellent. Then we shall expect you about seven-thirty. Come, Sergio."

The younger man obeyed rather unwillingly. He would have preferred to linger, but the tone of his father's voice admitted no argument.

"Goodbye," he murmured, "until tomorrow."

His words were like a caress, and Pat felt her face grow hot.

"Goodbye," she echoed, "and thanks—a lot."

When they were gone, Pat felt lonelier than ever. She was not sleepy, and the evening loomed ahead, dull and unending. What had happened to Dirk?

As though in answer to her question, he appeared in the doorway and, catching sight of her, crossed the room in rapid strides.

"I say," he exclaimed, lowering himself into a chair by her side. "I hope you didn't wait dinner for me?"

"Where have you been?" she asked curiously, noting that his shoes were caked with a reddish mud.

"Heaven knows," he laughed. "I got restless. It happens to me sometimes. You know, and I went out for a walk. I must have lost track of the time."

It seemed a rather lame explanation, but she didn't press the matter. Instead, she told him of the visitors she had just had and of her invitation for the following evening. Dirk's face grew serious and she noticed that a small muscle twitched in his jaw.

"I promised not to bother you any more," he said slowly. "But I do wish you wouldn't go there."

Pat laughed. "It was ridiculous. I'm only going for dinner. They surely won't examine or poison me."

"No, of course not. It's just that I hate to see you get mixed up with those people."

"Lovely weather we're having," Pat answered pointedly.

Dirk grinned. "Right you are. I wonder if it's too late to stroll out and take a peek at the moon?"

He pushed back his sleeve to look at his wrist watch, and Pat felt a sudden shiver down her spine. His cuff was held together by a pair of plain mother-of-pearl buttons!

Habit Spasms Generally Result From a Lack of Proper Balance in Vitamin and Mineral Values

THE question of ties is very general, and covers many of the "whys" with which mothers confront me. "Why does he pick his nose?" "Why does he roll his eyes?" "Why does he head jerk that way?" And there are as many answers as there are questions.

DR. CHRISMAN

A habit spasm takes the form of some involuntary muscular movement which the child seems unable to control. It isn't always children who have them although the affliction is commonest among children. A prominent business man of our town has just come out of a hospital experience with a tic that keeps him always pulling his neck up out of his collar. A friend of ours, a handsome elderly woman, has long affected the wearing of some sort of jeweled collar band about her neck. The fact that she continually tenses the muscles in one side of her neck. These cases are the result of certain nervous reflexes left from various indispositions in real illness. In children I am inclined to think them more a matter of metabolism.

At any rate, a systemic treatment with plenty of rest, that encourages normal growth and good bones seems to do more good than medicine. This thing we call "nerves" is usually some sort of imbalance which needs to be corrected if we want to get rid of the nervous manifestations.

The idea of an imbalance is borne out by the fact that tics occur most often before and during adolescence, and are more frequent in girls than in boys. This period is one of profound change, accompanied by some unusual nervous demonstrations. The simplest form of tic is some quick contraction of the facial muscles. Winking is a very common one, twitching the nose, turning the eyes upward, or jerking the head backward. For a pretty girl to suddenly toss her head and wink an eye, it may be disastrous, especially if she finds herself in deep embarrassment afterward.

Any muscular movement may be made so often as to become a tic. Many people shrug their shoulders as if settling their clothing or trying to wriggle out of them. Occasionally we have a tic in the throat which causes a peculiar grunting or a whistling sound through the larynx. Many of these manifestations run in families, not in a hereditary sense, but due sometimes to imitation and again because of tendencies resulting from the same weaknesses.

Often a tic will develop in a muscle that has been overstrained, especially if the patient is under par in health. A lack of nervous control may result in a tic and the same or a similar trouble run through a family. These habit spasms can be cured by a reasonable amount of attention to improving the general health.

Too much attention must not be given to the tic itself, especially in a child, and especially by way of ridicule. Anything that conduces to nerve irritation in a growing child must be corrected. Articles of clothing that bind or irritate should not be allowed. Long hours in the school room or a desk that is uncomfortable will not aid in recovery.

Some big folks would get rid of their twitchings sooner if they got rid of some things that irritate them. If the habit spasm in children approaches the degree of a mild tetanus we can be sure that some disturbance of nutrition is present. Certain of the salts, especially calcium and phosphorus, are not being absorbed in sufficient abundance to insure the balance between bone and muscle and tissue fiber throughout the anatomy.

This may call for a fresh study of vitamins, ultra-violet rays, or pure sunshine, and cod liver oil. The diet of the rich is quite as apt to be illy chosen as that of the poor is limited. A habit spasm is no respecter of persons.

Concerning Questions

Dr. Chrisman offers readers the privilege of addressing questions to him care of this paper. He will answer questions of general interest in his regular daily column on this page.

AGE TO MEN IS NOT A MATTER OF SILVER HAIR

By JACQUELINE HUNT

MEN'S attitude toward age is one that should make all of us sit up and take notice. Men do not feel that a woman loses her charm because birthdays have a way of piling up, or because a few gray hairs appear among the brown or gold. And it will interest some of you to know that men expect the same things of the older woman that they expect of the girl secretary or fiancée.

They expect the older woman to have enough personal pride in her appearance to keep her skin smooth and clear, her figure at least well-proportioned, her hair shining and her hands well-groomed. They like most of all for a woman to "be her age."

Nothing is so much in the opinion, as the older woman who tries to be kittenish and wear the make-up and clothes intended for a schoolgirl.

Men are unanimous in their denunciation of dyed hair. They are equally repelled by the graying locks, to be sure, but they prefer you that way to having your hair artificially colored. Sometimes I suspect there is a little jealousy in the fact that she continually tenses the muscles in one side of her neck. These cases are the result of certain nervous reflexes left from various indispositions in real illness. In children I am inclined to think them more a matter of metabolism.

The older woman should by all means use make-up, men say, but they should use it sparingly. And we would like to add, they should apply it with the idea of bringing out their most attractive features. A good foundation cream is the basis of perfect make-up especially for the older woman. Apply a film evenly and lightly over the entire face, smoothing carefully over lines if you have them.

Next dip your finger in a small amount of cold cream, then in cream rouge, and apply the color well up on your cheeks—never down. By keeping the color well up around your eyes you give them emphasis and make them more youthful.

Take a large piece of cotton, dip in a warm creamy shade of powder and pat liberally over your skin. Place your fingers on each side of lines and stretch the skin until smooth and powder over the lines. This makes them almost undetectable. When the face and neck are powdered, take a soft brush and remove the excess.

You need eye make-up. Not heavily shadowed lids or smartly arched brows, but lashes that are dark and just enough eye pencil to give your brows a fairly definite line.

Be as smart and fastidious as you can and men will still say, "I'd rather be with you than anyone else in the world."

Andre Citroen, "the French Henry Ford," Surprises The World by Getting Into Financial Difficulties

THE depression is no respecter of persons, and so it comes about that Andre Citroen, "the French Henry Ford," languishes in the midst of bankruptcy. Because his automobile manufacturing plant is the largest in Europe and represents so much in finance and employment to the French nation, the government feared that failure of the firm might drag down many other companies and seriously aggravate their economic illness. Therefore, they have called the motor king into conference with a view to keeping the plant active.

For Citroen to be in such a position seems a poor reward for his erstwhile services in military and commercial progress. He has been a spearhead in reorganizing the French method of production.

Born in Paris, February 5, 1878, Citroen started as a relatively poor man. He attended the famous Ecole Polytechnique between 1898 and 1900, and then began manufacturing with a small gear shop. His first year's business totaled 15,000 francs; in four years this turnover had in-

Suits, Mostly of English-Type Tweeds, Popular This Winter Worn With Scarfs

FOR THE IN-BETWEEN AGES

Copyright, 1934, by Patridge.

By IRENE VAIL

New York — An astonishing number of women are wearing suits this winter. Not all of the suits are fur-trimmed, although some are. Those that are worn are the English-looking tweeds, usually with a scarf instead of furs.

Suits banded with the softer furs such as yak, summer or winter ermine, or barundull, are being selected for southern wear. White furs on pastel-colored woollens, and even on heavy crepes, are very chic. Mention has already been made of white wolf, but the flat furs are, of course, something different again. Lapin is much in use for bands, and the practice of dyeing furs to match the material they trim persists. It must be admitted that it is much more effective in light than in dark colors.

We are led to believe that the whole idea, whether it is coat and skirt, or blouse and skirt, is to remain in the style picture. And from two to three pieces is the next natural step, which brings us right back to the ensemble, a type of costume without which women have no intention of doing.

Sketches today are some costumes for the younger set. Field flowers continue to blossom into the winter as exemplified in the frock at upper left, which has a hand-forged crepe collar.

Pastel frocks that are hand-embroidered is a suggestion. The dress illustrated has a floral bouquet decorating the bottom of the skirt as well as scatterings of flowers all over the bodice.

The trend to slimmer silhouette is observed in the center print which appears on a pure dye silk.

A velvet evening wrap features rippled collar and full shirred sleeves.

Pleats and bows add style interest to the attractive little frock below.

Taffeta is the fabric for party frocks. This one favors the Empire off-the-shoulder neckline and comes in flower shades.

At right of the column the dinner gown is in a yellow-green velvet with loops at the neckline faced with gold metal cloth. At back the bodice is formed in bolero effect and bordered with gold metal paillettes.

MODERN WOMEN

MODERN WOMEN

That Expressionless Look on the Faces of Sophisticated Women May Mean Unhappiness

SOPHISTICATED New York can be very naive at times. Accustomed to celebrities, yet the town never seems to lose its enthusiasm for new ones.

Recently New York went perfect close-up, this time the kindly Dr. Dafoe, who was pleasantly surprised to find a sign of the famous "quins," the Doctor's cleverly coined word for the famous Dionne quintuplets.

It so happened that he turned up just two rows ahead of me at a performance of that lively revue, "Life Begins at 8:40," and amusing though the show is, it was quite interesting to watch this simple man from the Canadian wilds enjoying himself. Even being singled out from the stage and asked to speak a few words failed to spoil the night for Dr. Dafoe, who takes what comes in his stride—even five babies.

Looking at him on this occasion reminds one of the basic truth of the old bromide that the truly great are always simple. As a further illustration of this, as well as of the fact that audiences frequently produce more of interest than the stage they face, is another close-up, this time of Princess Mdivani, Barbara Hutton to you and me.

Another night, another play—"Gold Eagle Guy," to be exact—and up the aisle comes the diminutive Princess with shiny gold hair and a mask of a face, pretty enough, it's true, but with no glint of any expression, unless it might be sheer boredom. Her clothes? Lovely, of course, and worthy of a princess of greater rank than hers. Under a furless carmine red velvet coat, a dress of green and gold brocade, and a gleam of jades and diamonds, which handsomely contrast with the shining gold of her smoothly dressed hair. Nothing very simple about the five-and-ten-cent-store princess, nothing at all that gave anything to the world anything even to inspire envy, if envy can be said to be inspired.

No one with an ounce of discernment could possibly want to change places with this poor-little-rich-girl, whose shine is all on the outside, not as in the case of the merry little doctor. But maybe it is only that Barbara was wearing her most fashionable face. Everywhere one goes worldly women present faces drained of anything that resembles expression—character, if you like. Lovely masks registering superiority or boredom there are aplenty and far too few with much else to offer. I am sure Dr. Dafoe would hate to see any, or all, of his "quins" grow up to look like many of the women he met in his whirlwind tour of night clubs and theaters while in New York.

I AM quite sure, too, that he would never be attracted by mere surface good looks, or would even want it for the quins. And I am equally sure that if he has anything to do with their upbringing they will never wear a mask instead of a face. There will be a light within, or the doctor will not consider his job well done, or at all worth while.

Were it necessary to prove so well known a fact, it would be simple enough to list any number of rich women and girls who never impress as being content, or even reasonably happy. It would be silly to say that the possession of wealth excluded the possibility of being happy, but it is just as silly to say that without it one could not be. Given identical dispositions, it must follow that one could be happier with money. But that doesn't say that the girl with a happy nature has not a greater chance of contentment without money than the one who has money and no capacity for life's enjoyment.

It must be easier to be happy in natural, simple surroundings than when one's life is complicated by being constantly on parade and on guard. I am sure that Dr. Dafoe gets more joy out of life than the Princess Mdivani.

Have You a Question?

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in the column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this newspaper.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I have a very oily skin, despite corrective treatments, astringents and a carefully regulated diet. Fifteen minutes after I have applied my make-up, my skin is shiny and my powder caked and rouge smudged. Can you please tell me how to make my cosmetics stay?" —Georgine."

I am afraid you will never find your cosmetics entirely satisfactory until you have improved the extreme oiliness of your skin. Have you tried using an astringent soaked piece of cotton around an ice cube for massaging your face after cleansing? This tones the circulation and is good in cases of extreme oiliness. I would suggest that you use a tinted powder lotion over your skin as a powder base, then dust with a fluffy powder that is not too fine in texture. I believe that the powder you are using is too fine and heavy for your skin. You might try blending a little liquid rouge with your powder lotion for tinting your cheeks.

Winter Lunches for School Child Should Be Elaborate

By JUDITH WILSON

NOW that the children are starting back to school after the holidays the problem of lunches again claims the attention of busy mothers. Winter school lunches are a problem. During the fall when several hours daily were spent in active games, appetites were good. But now that the chilly weather keeps the children indoors more, appetites may lag or the child may be tempted to spend too much of his lunch hour playing and not eating properly.

Try to begin the day with a good breakfast that will, as far as possible offset any irregularities of the day. Children should not go to school without a substantial breakfast to supply energy for the morning's work.

Where the children live so far from school that it is necessary for them to carry their lunches or eat in the school room, extra effort must be made to keep the noon meal well balanced. If there is a school lunch room see that it is run by a diet specialist; otherwise let the child carry his lunch home.

Especially during the winter it is important that one of the foods in the lunch box is warm. Make chowders, vegetable soup with milk, hot cocoa and malted milk drinks and put them into a thermos bottle to keep warm until noon. Try to keep the other contents varied and attractive so the child will not lose interest.

Surprise Rice Muffins

Beat one egg and add one tablespoon melted shortening and two-thirds cup milk. Combine with one cup flour sifted with three teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Add one tablespoon sugar and one cup cooked rice and beat thoroughly. Fill small greased muffin cups one-third full of the mixture and add a teaspoon of strawberry jam to each muffin. Bake in a hot oven until the muffins are done and light brown—about twenty minutes.

Strawberry Sauce

Blend one-fourth cup butter, one-half cup confectioner's sugar, one cup strawberry preserves and one stiffly beaten egg white. Beat this sauce until fluffy and serve on the hot pudding.

Vegetable Souffle

This makes a good main dish for the child who has lunch at

Add the beaten yolks of three eggs and one cup strained tomatoes, spinach, carrot, squash or turnip. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into individual ramekins. Set in a pan of water and bake about forty-five minutes.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "After a wedding rehearsal should the bride or the bridegroom entertain the attendants?" —P. L."

ANSWER: Either way is correct. The bride may serve refreshments at her home afterward or the groom may give a little party at a hotel.

QUESTION: "An aunt and uncle are celebrating their fortieth wedding anniversary in a few weeks. What sort of gift would be appreciated?" —B. D."

ANSWER: The fortieth wedding anniversary is generally celebrated as the "woolen wedding." As gifts for this occasion or a charming hooked rug of long-wearing woolen, or a big, burly motor robe, are suitable. You may get a smoking jacket for the man and something knitted to wear for the woman, a sweater set, a scarf and glove set, of course, if you would rather not give a woolen gift, a useful gift of some other nature will be just as acceptable.

Short Cuts

Sweetbreads are easy to prepare, and cook quickly. They may be broiled, fried or creamed. Before cooking, however, always remember to soak sweetbreads in cold water for about a half an hour.

Apples will not turn dark after they have been peeled, if you keep them in cold water to which lemon juice has been added.

When adding chili sauce to dressing, drain the sauce beforehand. Otherwise it will make the dressing thin.

To remove paint spots, use equal parts of ammonia and spirits of turpentine. The spots should be saturated three or four times and then washed in soap suds.

A NEW WAY TO SERVE TOMATOES

Here is a suggestion for that special luncheon, before you sit down at the bridge table. Dice in quarters Brazil nuts and place on top of halved tomatoes. Add a half slice of bacon to each. Then grill, and when ready go fish with parsley.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral waters, oil, laxatives, candy or chewing gum, and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-out-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not pouring freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels.
Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul.
Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, a amazing gas comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Demand a substitute. 20-cent drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

EL CERRITO IS INSISTENT ON JUNIOR HIGH

Homer Patterson was instructed by the El Cerrito city council last evening to draw up a resolution to be sent to the Richmond Union high school board asking that a junior high school be erected in El Cerrito.

It was stated that due to the overcrowded condition of junior high schools in Richmond and the increasing number of students, the people of El Cerrito were entitled to a school in that city.

UNDERPASS IN PROSPECT
In response to a request from the council, C. H. Purcell, state engineer, said the construction of an underpass at 55th street and Peralta avenue would be taken up when the new state highway to the Oakland-San Francisco bridge was started.

TO IMPROVE PARKS
Work on the improvement of two parks in El Cerrito under the SERA will be started next week, according to the report of Street Commissioner W. F. Huber.

Huber stated that the two projects had been approved and a fill at the park on Poinsett avenue and for a culvert and fill at the park on Terrace Drive.

The estimated cost for the improvement of the Poinsett avenue park was $192 and for Terrace Drive park for $168.

APPLICATION FILED
Application of J. C. Darling for the position of poundmaster was read and placed on file.

FILE CROSSING MAP
Map of the proposed crossing of the railroad tracks at Knott avenue was referred to acting City Attorney Homer Patterson.

Patterson was instructed to obtain permission for construction of the crossing from the Santa Fe and to secure the necessary rights of way.

ACTION HELD UP
No action was taken by the council on the submission of a project for the construction of curbs, gutters and sidewalks to the SERA for approval.

The project as presented the council by City Engineer H. D. Chapman stated the city would provide all materials.

The council will not act on the project until Chapman submits a letter stating the city will not be liable for other supervision costs and the supplying of equipment.

TO SUBMIT PROJECT
The painting of the fire hydrants and street signs in El Cerrito with aluminum paint will be submitted to the SERA by Councilman W. F. Huber for approval.

PHONE MEETING PLANNED
Councilman Louis Navellier informed the council a meeting would be held this week between a committee from the council and representatives of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. on the establishment of a local exchange in El Cerrito.

Working In The Subway

WHILE WOMEN laborers have done heavy manual work in digging Moscow's new subway tunnel, women technicians also have had an important part in its construction. Above is shown a woman surveyor preparing engineering lines in the huge tunnel.

Navellier said he hoped a satisfactory solution would be worked out.

At the present time the citizens of El Cerrito are served by two telephone exchanges, Richmond and the Oakland.

Other members of the committee are Councilman Peter Larsen and Acting City Attorney Homer Patterson.

FIX WAGES
On a motion of Councilman W. F. Huber the council fixed the pay of all SERA foremen at $5 per day.

BONDS ACCEPTED
Bonds of $1,000 each for City Clerk Fred J. Prosser, deputy tax collector, Margaret O'Connell and Police Judge A. G. Thompson were accepted by the council.

CHEAPER GAS PRICES
Action on a contract submitted by the Shell Oil Co. for the supplying of gasoline to the city not to exceed 12½ cents, 13½ cents and 15½ cents plus one cent Federal tax per gallon for the different grades for a period of one year, was laid over for one week. This is a saving of two cents over the present contract.

City Clerk Fred J. Prosser said he had a new contract from the Standard Oil Co. which he thought quoted the same prices.

Councilman W. F. Huber said as the Standard Oil Co. now has the contract the council should ascertain if the prices are the same and if so to extend the contract.

New Members Official Family Are Welcomed

Members were taken of the group by Mrs. A. F. Bray, daughter of the retiring sheriff, one scene being when Miller and Veale marched down the aisle with bare heads and each carrying a large bouquet of flowers. Handshaking was then in order and several hundred friends of the pair greeted them with a goodwill that was obviously deep.

BOWER OF FLOWERS
Resembling the interior of a conservatory was the outer sanctum of Francis P. Healey, the new district attorney. Large and imposing, the basket of rare and beautiful flowers, clusters of carnations, delicately shaded roses, exotics, fancifully adorned with gleaming loops of satin ribbon, all gave mute and fragrant evidence of the wide circle of his friendships covering the county.

Throughout the day there was a constant stream of callers, and by dusk the new district attorney was ready to ring down the curtain. His assistant prosecutors, heretofore exclusively announced in the Record-Herald are: Rex Boyer of Martinez, chief deputy; Homer Patterson of Richmond and Harold Jacoby of El Cerrito.

After being sworn in yesterday, Healey announced that Miss Jean Finkle, who has been associated with him in his Richmond office, will be his secretary and the stenographers appointed will be Carroll Pitchford of Richmond and Miss Ella Ray of Martinez.

GRATEFUL GESTURE
Ralph Cunningham upon his elevation to the position of County Recorder yesterday made a grateful gesture of appreciation to C. H. Hayden, the retiring official, by appointing his son, Hoyt H. Hayden to the position of deputy and the promotion of Lester J. Bower of Antioch to that of chief deputy. Mr. Cunningham has been connected as a deputy with the recorder's office for eight years and the slight change of the personnel was not of that conspicuous character which involved the turn-overs in the offices of sheriff and district attorney. Under those circumstances he was agreeably surprised by the procession of visitors yesterday who called to tender sincere congratulations and gladness greetings. And these ranged from juveniles to patriarchs, with intermittent bevy of winsome women. He will retain the entire force of present clerical assistants, comprising Edith Jacks and Mary Powers of Martinez as index clerks; and Helen Parker, Bertha Morken and Lydia Bulger as copyists, all of whom have efficiently served for a number of years.

PLATE NAMED DEPUTY
County Auditor A. N. Sullenger, who was re-elected and qualified for another term, only made one change in his force, appointing J. H. Plate of Richmond as a deputy, replacing Mrs. Bess Bulger, who, it was stated, had been serving temporarily.

NO BOARD CHANGES
There were no changes in the board of supervisors, members James J. Long of Richmond and H. M. Stow of Walnut Creek being sworn in to succeed themselves. W. J. Buchanan of Pittsburg was re-elected chairman of the board, an honor he has held for 15 years.

MRS. EMILY E. GREELEY local Girl Scout executive and her son, Samuel, have returned from an extended trip to the east.

Mrs. E. Anderson, Richmond Woman Taken By Death

Funeral services will be held from the Wilson and Kratzer chapel this afternoon at 3 o'clock for the late Mrs. Emma Christine Anderson, 82, of 428 Fourth street, who died at a Martinez hospital on Sunday.

Rev. A. J. Case will officiate at the rites, which will be followed by cremation at Berkeley.

Deceased was a native of Boston, Mass., and had lived in Richmond for the past 36 years. She was the widow of the late Otto Anderson, former Santa Fe employee.

Also surviving are her brother, Charles E. Hagley with whom she lived and two granddaughters, and Mrs. Irene Sanders of Las Vegas, Nevada.

She was a member of the Wesley M. E. church.

an himself of the privilege extended by a new law to comment on evidence and testimony in a criminal case, occurred in Merced a few days ago when a motion for a new trial was made in behalf of Mrs. Bertha Tinkler, charged on a charge of murdering her husband. The learned jurist unequivocally declared his belief in the guilt of the defendant. Perjury the woman is guilty. Evidently the jury that convicted her held that view, and it is hardly possible that a substantial or reasonable error may have been made during the trial. When, therefore, may I inquire will she have an appeal in view of the judge's expressed opinion, and even though she did get a new trial what chance would she have with that damning statement having gone forth to all prospective jurors? Incidentally, just as a matter of curiosity, I would like to know how my good friend Clara Horner would feel were he the attorney in the case?

Incidentally, the police department is expected to see the result of such a movement as it has been his contention, for some time, that the department must have the united backing of the people of the city, in order to get results.

Former Councilman A. L. Paulsen was present at the meeting and stated he was very happy to see steps taken to have such an organization formed. Just today I got a "ticket," and it cost me $2.00 but I paid it willingly. When the law is violated," said Paulsen, "make the violator pay, make no exceptions, and in a short time the streets of the city and the highways of the county and state will be safe not only for motorists but pedestrians as well."

Lions Will Aid Police In War On Speedsters

Chief of Police L. E. Jones was much pleased at the meeting of the council last evening when a letter was read from the Richmond Lions club, stating it was sponsoring the organization of a safety council in this city, and inviting the council to participate.

A meeting for the purpose has been called for January 16th at 1230 P. M. at the council chamber in the city hall.

Indignations have been sent to every civic organization, the service club, and to all industries asking them to have representatives at the meeting when the necessity of taking united action to stop reckless driving and violations of the motor vehicle act will be discussed.

When the outside cities, where the officials are now functioning, will be present and will be asked that they have been acquainted.

Robbery Theory Is Discarded; Cash Is Found At Scene

LADDER FOUND
Another mystifying angle was uncovered when a blood-splattered step-ladder was discovered in the shambles. Just where the step-ladder came from, or how it was used, was puzzling the minds of the investigators.

One theory advanced by police last night was that the killer had placed the step-ladder at the door of the Anthony home and had climbed upon it to peer through the transom at Anthony; that Anthony saw the party, opened the door and confronted the person; that a terrific battle ensued and the killer, after performing his gruesome task, threw the step-ladder into the room and fled.

Another puzzling question is whether Anthony was bound and killed, or whether he was killed and then bound with several yards of cheap, cotton clothesline.

BODY TRISSED
When found, the dead man lay on his back with his hands lashed together in front. The knots were crudely tied.

When the body was discovered at 9:30 yesterday morning, Chief Jones called Coroner Wilson to the scene. Wilson at that time expressed belief that he may have been killed shortly before, or after midnight Sunday night.

SEEN BY OFFICER
Anthony was last seen Sunday night at 6:45 P. M. by Police Officer E. C. Porenmyre who stopped at the station. He said that Anthony closed the station shortly after, telling the officer that he was going to get a "bite to eat and go to bed." But, when the body was found, Anthony had not undressed, except for removing his shoes. He was wearing a leather jacket, a leather necktie, such as generally is worn by service station attendants and white trousers.

Anthony was also seen shortly after 5:30 on Sunday night by A. S. Whiteside, of Point Richmond, owner of the store and service station buildings. Whiteside collected the rental from Anthony and then left.

CLUE IS FAILURE
Police for a few minutes yesterday believed they were on a "hot tip" when they discovered blood clots on the front steps and porch of the home of Henry Abrao, 449 South Fifteenth street, which is in the rear of the store.

Police questioned members of the Abrao family. Finally, however, one of the children told police that he had cut his finger on a beer bottle and that while he was walking in the house he swung his hand, splattering the walk and steps with blood.

BODY FOUND
Discovery of the body was made by Gerald Shaw, of 440 South Eighteenth street, operator of a grocery store in which Anthony's rooms were located and Robert Gragg, of 325 South Eighteenth street, a customer at Shaw's store.

According to Shaw and Gragg they were talking together shortly after Shaw had opened the store and both remarked that Anthony had not opened his service station. Believing that he was still asleep, they looked through a glass door in a partition between the store room and Anthony's quarters. There they saw the front room of Anthony's apartment in wild disorder, the carpet spotted with large blood spots, and the blood stained ladder. One curtain had been ripped from its hanging.

Rushing around to the front entrance of the room, they found the door unlocked. They passed into the sleeping quarters at the rear and discovered the man's trussed body, with the handle of the adze protruding from the horrible wound in the head.

BITES PENDING
Anthony came here about two years ago from Del Norte county. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Dolan who is enroute here, and two sisters, Mrs. Westover and Mrs. W. J. Fahden, wife of Dr. W. J. Fahden, Martinez dentist.

Acquaintances of Anthony said he did not "mix" freely with others and they believed he did not have any intimate friends or bitter enemies in this district.

The body is at the Wilson and Kratzer chapel where funeral services and an inquest are pending.
